

JAA Arbitration Day 2024

New Trends in ISDS: Recent Developments in Investor-State Arbitration and Mediation

Tuesday, 12 March 2024 5:00 pm – 7:30 pm

Bar Associations Building, 1-1-3 Kasumigaseki, Chiyoda-ku, Tokyo, Japan

17th Floor 1701 Meeting Room

ISDS (Investor-State Dispute Settlement), a mechanism of dispute resolution between countries and foreign investors, is on the rise worldwide, and in recent years there have been increasing number of cases in which Japanese companies are parties to ISDS. At the same time, the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law (UNCITRAL) is taking the lead in deepening discussions on the reform of the ISDS system.

In addition, during such discussions, international mediation is drawing interest as a new ISDS tool. In particular, the United Nations Convention on International Settlement Agreements Resulting from Mediation (the Singapore Convention on Mediation) entered into force in 2020 (Japan decided to accede to it in 2023, which will enter into force in April, 2024) and interest in and expectations for dispute resolution between countries and foreign investors through international mediation are growing. In fact, the International Centre for Settlement of Investment Disputes (ICSID) and UNCITRAL have also developed mediation rules that can be used in ISDS.

At this seminar, overseas and domestic leading individuals will provide presentations and panel discussion on the recent developments and the effectiveness of arbitration and mediation as a tool for ISDS. While international politics and economy is full of unstable factors, a possibility that Japan and Japanese companies will become (or is forced to become) parties to ISDS is growing. Under such circumstances, it will be a valuable opportunity for anyone who may be involved in ISDS cases (including inhouse lawyers who may be in charge of ISDS cases or lawyers who may become the counsel, mediator or arbitrator in future ISDS cases) to learn more about the arbitration and mediation as a tool for ISDS.

This seminar will be held in hybrid style (in-person and online). Those who are not members of the JAA can also participate either in-person or online.
